

Dessa Shapiro's Credo

I believe in the human mind,
The chemicals and compounds that make us one in a kind,
the compartments of consciousness that make us choose ,
The emotions or pain and sorrow we long to lose ,
The brain inside my head,
That gives me an essence , built with memories and self preservations , and connecting nerves that give the world sense .

But fate and destiny do not take rest in me, for I feel lying in wait for something like fate is but an illusion people make to compensate for the choices they are unable to make I believe in self creation,
I believe in a human beings personal exploration ,
I believe in the choice to be good or evil ,
Or something in between , a choice to be defenseless or lethal,to make decisions at my young age of fifteen
.

And I believe in living, for no matter what one believes that belief would not exist without the mind connected giving life. living every day knowing you are insignificant to time and continue growing, for you are significant to yourself, your beliefs, your opinions, your mind.